

English, French and Americans always have been proud of their reputation of their several countries as a safe refuge for political fugitives.

And knowing this tradition few Americans were surprised when London court Thursday turned loose Gerhart Eisler, German Communist who was wanted back here technically for perjury. Actually, of course, the perjury count was incidental to the fact that Eisler is a dangerous revolutionary whom the United States was merely trying to get rid of.

But the British court reached its decision without raising the embarrassing question whether Eisler was being politically persecuted. The court held that the United States had simply failed to prove Eisler guilty of perjury as defined by English law, and there was no other charge under which he could be extradited, according to the terms of the treaty governing such exchanges between our two nations.

We are, of course, well rid of Eisler, one way or another. Nor will the British be sorry to see him leave their own shores for his native Germany.

But the cold facts are that Gerhart Eisler has handed America a passing from beginning to end. He was given the keys to our country for several years — and went out of here under circumstances which will give Soviet Russia propaganda material to cry down "American tyranny and political oppression" as long as you and I live.

Because of Gerhart Eisler and the smooth way he took our diplomatic set into camp succeeding events were inescapable — but they add up to something unpleasant. America's reputation for not putting people into jail for political crimes is a good deal lower today than that of our sister democracies, France and England.

When will we begin asking questions of suspect foreigners as they arrive on our shores instead of waiting interminably until something like the Eisler mess blows our fair name to smithereens around the world?

Young Governor Sid McMath is confronted by a question as old as transportation itself, when, as reported on this page yesterday, he takes off for West Memphis June 7 to look into the argument over whether a super-highway will be built around that city.

Good roads are one thing, serving both the country traveler and the long-distance traveler whose chief interest is in getting somewhere fast — but the true super-highway raises a question.

The question has been previewed in Pennsylvania, where the construction of the Pennsylvania Turnpike from Harrisburg to near Pittsburgh, a 150-mile highway, the length of the state, was fought from the very beginning by the smaller cities and towns. And they are now fighting proposed extensions of the toll road.

The reason for the opposition, roads that miss all towns do not allow tourists to spend money along the way.

The question originating in the case of the Pennsylvania Turnpike is basic to every super-highway, whether it be a toll road or a road to serve the long-distance traveler alone, or will there be a compromise so that local interests can be accommodated, too?

I think there will be a compromise. But this does not exclude the most certain prospect of trunk roads eventually bypassing the business districts of all cities. And there may even be a network of super-roads that don't pretend to serve the smaller cities, and towns at all. But this latter project will have to wait until one of the existing roads are made a good deal better than they are now.

The governor will probably work out a compromise on the West Memphis matter, perhaps a by-pass merely skirting the edge of town, Arkansas, and in fact, the whole Southwest, is a long way off from either wanting, or being able to pay for, long-distance roads that miss towns entirely.

Attempt to Recover Body Abandoned

Fort Smith, May 28 — (AP) — An attempt to recover the body of James A. Sands, Charleston, Ark., who apparently drowned in the Arkansas river near here a week ago, has been abandoned temporarily.

Red Cross crews yesterday located a submerged automobile believed to be the one Sands occupied, but were unable to remove it.

Red Cross Water Safety Director Louis Chastain said the Grant river authority would be asked to close flood gates in Oklahoma temporarily so the river would fall. Until the river stage is lower, Chastain said, no further effort would be made to recover the automobile.

Sands' car left an old highway and plunged into the river.

Kerr Withdraws Move to Change Red River Plan

Washington, May 28 — (AP) — Oklahoma Senator Kerr's proposal that a 13-member commission draft a development plan for the Arkansas, White and Red river basins has drawn opposition.

Kerr appeared in support of his bill before the Senate public works committee yesterday.

He said he didn't propose to create a basin authority, but to coordinate information on needs for power, flood control, navigation and soil and water conservation.

Rep. Brooks of Louisiana commented that "we already have a development plan for the Red river. What we want is action not study."

Matthias of Shreveport, executive secretary of the Red River Valley association, said his group is opposed to the Red river being included in the commission plan.

Washington, May 27 (AP) — A proposal by Senator Kerr (Dem., Okla.) that a commission draw up a development plan for the Arkansas, White and Red river basins, drew strong opposition from the Red river area today.

"We already have a development plan for the Red river," objected representative Brooks (Dem., La.). "What we want is action, not study."

Kerr proposed a 13-member commission which would have two and a half years to make its report.

He told the House Public Works Committee hearing on his bill that his plan was not to create a basin authority, but to coordinate information on needs for power, flood control, navigation and soil and water conservation.

Chairman Whittington (Dem., Miss.) noted the committee is studying requests to authorize many projects in the three basins, asking Kerr if he would recommend delaying such authorizations until the commission would complete its work.

"Very definitely I would not," Kerr said.

Anticipates Argument Representative Allen (Dem., La.) testified that while the bill does not appear to delay projects on the Red river, "the argument will be made to hold up work pending this survey."

"We don't need a survey," he said. "Army Engineers have developed a plan for the Red river. I don't want to take a chance on any delay which would subject us to another great flood."

Lt. Col. H. C. Gee of the Army Engineers told the committee the plan for the Red river is a long-range project, and that the Kerr bill, however, he said, would change the commission would file its final reports through the various government agencies concerned with river developments rather than direct to the president and Congress.

L. R. Matthias of Shreveport, executive secretary of the Red River Valley association, said his association — composed of members in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, and Louisiana — is "vehemently opposed to having the Red river included in such a commission plan."

"We have our program under way," Matthias said. "This plan might set us back years."

Allen, in reply, if arguments of the Red river group wouldn't hold also for the other streams, Matthias said he isn't familiar with progress on those rivers.

Leroy Chandler of Alexandria, La., supported arguments of the Louisianaans.

Bruce Tucker, administrative assistant to Senator Long (Dem., La.), said the senator was unable to attend the hearing but wished to submit a statement in which he would oppose the bill.

Gerr said that Congress is proceeding on a "Project by project" basis and, while he approves the individual projects, his purpose is to let Congress hear the whole watershed and its potential.

Survivor of Shooting Sent to Rest Home

Little Rock, May 28 — (AP) — Leon Tubb, 12, only survivor of a mysterious shooting near Berryville, last March, has been transferred from a hospital here to a children's convalescent home at Jackson, Ark.

The boys' physician disclosed he had removed the bullet which lodged in Leon's brain, but said he still was partly paralyzed and that his speech is impaired. The doctor said the boy probably would require a long period of convalescence.

Leon was wounded: his brother and a dog killed, near the Tubbs home in Carroll county.

Authorities are waiting for Leon to improve to tell what happened.

Farmer Collects for Damage to Rice Crop

Washington, May 28 — (AP) — President Truman has signed a bill to pay B. G. Jones, Walnut Ridge, Ark., $2,686 for alleged air dusting damage to his 1943 rice crop.

Jones' crop was damaged, he claimed, because of a malaria-control program carried out by the U.S. Public Health Service. In the program rice fields were dusted from airplanes. Jones said they flew too low for proper distribution of the chemicals.

Truman Bills May Be Left Untouched

Washington, May 28 — (AP) — Democratic leaders were reported today to be aiming for an August 15 adjournment of congress — even if several of President Truman's measures are left untouched.

An influential Democrat who asked not to be quoted by name told a reporter the president's assertion congress ought to stay in session until it passes most of his program doesn't mean that's going to happen.

Despite Mr. Truman's statement that every one of a score or more of his proposals deserves priority rating, there were signs that he may have to be satisfied with final action on a half dozen.

And Senator Taft (R-Ohio) predicted that one of those proposed repeal of the Taft-Hartley act — may reach the president in such form that he will be tempted to veto it.

The bill may take up next week a bill approved by the Democratic majority of its labor committee which would repeal most of the Taft-Hartley provisions and restore much of the original Wagner act.

Taft told a reporter, however, that he thinks the senate will come closer to accepting a substitute measure he has proposed which makes more than a score of changes in the present law but keeps most of its major provisions.

There was evidence, too, that there may be enough Southern Democratic and Republican strength on this issue to overwhelm administration forces. House action is uncertain.

Besides action on the labor measure, congressional leaders are pushing for a house vote on senate passed long-range housing and school aid bills.

Because of the illness of Senator George (D-Ga.), the senate probably will delay action on the house approved medical care measure until it disposes of the labor bill. The North Atlantic Security treaty also remains to be acted upon.

Neither house yet has taken action on the president's proposal to boost the minimum wage level, but leaders say they want action on it.

This program would leave untouched the president's proposals for broadening social security coverage, setting up a system of universal medical care, putting into effect a new farm subsidy plan, enacting civil rights legislation and increasing taxes.

Cops Willing to Draw Some Extra Duty

Inglewood, Cal., May 28 — (UP) — A nude young woman who has courted around Los Angeles county like a model, Lady Godiva had scores of eager-eyed cops volunteering for extra duty today.

The uninhibited nature girl appeared in four communities in southwestern Los Angeles county on two days this week. But she never stayed long enough in one spot for disappointed officers to make an arrest.

The cops were hampered because a truck witness to her driving strip tease failed to get the license number of the battered coupe in which she rides.

The young lady has made all of her appearances around the noon hours under a blazing sun. Cupp said that in his district she always showed up in spots where men were present.

But so far no men have complained. All of the reports have come from excited women.

The girl appeared first at Lawndale, sauntering about in the raw for a few minutes before driving off again in her car.

Then Mrs. Frank H. Collette reported seeing the woman near her home at Redondo Beach. She said the woman was about 30 years old, and five feet, five inches tall. Her flowing black hair only covered her shoulders.

"I was standing on my lawn talking to a neighbor woman," Collette said. "A car drove just past the intersection. A woman got out. She was wearing only sandals."

Kaufman and Wright Given 45 Years Each

Blountville, Tenn. — Verdicts of guilty on all counts were returned by a circuit court jury here Friday against Paul Kaufman, 42, of Texarkana and Norman E. Wright, 31, Dallas, charged in the burglary of a drug store safe at Kingsport, Tenn. December 1948.

Sentences totaling 45 years were recommended for each man, but the defense attorney made motion for a new trial. Pending hearing of the trial motion bonds were fixed at $25,000 each.

Kaufman and Wright were arrested by Arkansas state police near Hope, Ark. 8 days after the Tenn. burglary.

State policeman H. C. Irby and J. H. (Pod) Porterfield of Hope, testified that when arrested here the men had in possession about $1400 in cash, 1020 hypodermic tablets and vials of morphine valued at about $4000, and a complete set of burglary tools.

They were held in Hempstead county jail for several weeks on charges, but were turned over to Tennessee officials who had the best case against them. The money and drugs were found after questioning in Sheriff Claud Sutton's office.

Kaufman, a former Bowie county boy, was convicted in 1949, as an unregistered German alien. Both men face charges in Hempstead.

Pretty Tough Being Grown and Realize You Were Making More Money When You Were 6

By HAL BOYLE
New York — (AP) — How would you like to be 34 years old and realize you weren't making as much money as you did at 6?

Wendell Holmes is in this position. He is one of the better-known voices from the void that come out of your radio box.

He is a radio personality, a good example of the hardships radio acting, a field to which many feel themselves called — but few hear themselves chosen. For to many golden voices radio offers a pittance reward.

"There are about 5,000 radio actors here," said Holmes. "And last year they averaged $16 a week salary. Only about 500 manage to earn a truckdriver's living."

Holmes, an ex-child Chautauqua star, is now among the top 100 radio actors whose incomes reach several hundred dollars a week. But it took him 15 years to get there. And many were hungry years.

"When I started in 1934 I got $10 a week for working 30 shows," he said wryly.

Since then Holmes has been the voice of Winston Churchill on a number of radio programs and March of Time films. He is currently in three daytime soap operas. He also plays Dr. Watson on the CBS Sherlock Holmes program and also enacts the title role in another CBS production, "Scattergood Baines."

"So far I haven't been introduced on the air as Scattergood Baines," he said with a mild shudder. But it's a tongue-slip someone's bound to make eventually.

Holmes was named after poet Oliver Wendell Holmes by his schoolteacher parents. At the age of 6 he won an oratorical contest in Middleport, O., and a Chautauqua scout signed him up.

Eisler Goes Free — Jeers at America

London, May 28 — (AP) — Bail-jumping Gerhart Eisler, Communist fugitive from the United States, was in hiding today to be "safe from Americans," he said.

Eisler was freed yesterday by a Bow street court magistrate in extradition proceedings instituted by the United States.

"I expected it," Eisler said in a press interview. "I expect a dirty trick from them — the house un-American activities committee and the justice department."

The American embassy was pledged publicly to abide by the British court decision.

Eisler was convicted and sentenced to prison terms for falsification of a visa application and for refusing to testify before the house un-American activities committee. He fled while free on bail pending an appeal of his conviction.

Cumberland School Abandons Football

Lebanon, Tenn., May 28 — (AP) — Cumberland university, one of the south's pioneers in football, has abandoned intercollegiate athletics.

The board of trustees and the athletic committee voted yesterday to stop out of college competition and devote the time and money to intramural sports.

Big Four May Decide Berlin Railway Strike

Berlin, May 28 — (AP) — American spokesmen said today Berlin's paralyzing railway strike, which has become involved in the cold war, may have to be settled at higher government levels by the four powers.

"If there is no settlement in the next few days, it may have to go up to the government level," said James W. Riddleberger, the U.S. State Department's chief adviser in Germany.

The Paris conference can't take any step in any time and take action."

He added that "another try" for a settlement is being made here.

C. A. Dix, American transport expert said so many questions of high policy have been created by the strike that neither the Russian nor Western officials here can take a positive stand. The Russian expert "bump up against their high policy all the time," Dix asserted.

The people of Berlin, pinched by the week-old strike and recognizing its place in cold war maneuvering, are getting blockade jitters.

Called by West Berlin anti-Communist railway workers against their Russian bosses, the strike has been described by the Western Allies as justified.

Today, however, Brig. Gen. Frank S. Howley, U.S. commander in the American sector of Berlin, charged that "it's quite clear the Communists wanted this situation to develop. They engineered it that way."

He asserted they hoped it would help Russian negotiators in the big four talks at Paris which seek to settle the entire German problem.

The Russians have contended that the Western powers are backing the strikers, with the same idea. The Russians came up with a new angle last night, naming the Western Allies to narrow one of their airlift corridors to Berlin because Soviet gunners would start air-to-ground target practice today in that area.

American and British authorities said they would not change one of the airlift corridors to Berlin because the strike has made the chief supply line to this beleaguered city.

Yesterday, the 336th day of the airlift, British and American planes flew 7,830 tons of supplies to Berlin. U.S. air force officers said more than 1,700,000 tons have been delivered by air since the lift started.

Berlin's railroads remained stagnant, and the pinch of the rail strike is being felt acutely. The morale of Berlin people is lower than in the midst of the Russian blockade. They had hoped for better times when the blockade barriers were flung aside May 12.

There was an improvement in their supply position from then until the strike hit.

Berlin people feel their city is a pawn in the east-west cold war, and they don't doubt the sign that the Big Four meetings in Paris are making much headway toward settlement.

There has been a series of little duels of wits between strikers and the railway management. An instance: Soviet zone workers under Russian officers worked for three hours yesterday to open a blocked switch and get fires going under boilers of three locomotives in a railway yard. They moved the locomotives only to find that the tracks had been torn out and hidden. While they hunted for the tracks somebody quenched the fires in the locomotives. The Russians gave up and left.

AEC Plans to Tighten Up on Spending

Washington, May 27 (AP) — Congressional investigators of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) laid plans today to put tighter checks on the agency's spending.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.) said after a meeting of the senate-house atomic committee that measures are being considered which undoubtedly will take the form of legislation "to require pre-approval" by the joint committee of "major" AEC spending projects.

The AEC is asking over a billion dollars to finance its activities in the 12 months beginning July 1.

McMahon told a news conference that no decision was reached in a closed door committee session on how broad the committee should make its investigation of the administration of AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal. The group will report back Tuesday.

McMahon said the delay was at the request of Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) who reportedly told the committee he needs the weekend "for preparation" of his suggestions.

Hickenlooper has demanded the ouster of Lilienthal on grounds of "incredible mismanagement" and "maladministration."

Lilienthal, contending the commission's record is a good one, has asked the broadest sort of inquiry, covering the commission's accomplishments as well as its errors. Some committee members have taken the attitude that the scope should be restricted if the investigation is not to last all summer.

Hail Storm Ruins 1000 Acres of Cotton at Madison

Madison, Ark., May 28 — (AP) — More than 1,000 acres of cotton were reported ruined by a hail storm which struck the Graham farm near here late yesterday.

The 10 to 15 minute storm was confined to a two-mile-wide strip in the Crow Creek valley. Farmers in that area reported several acres of peach orchards were badly damaged.

Highway patrolmen said the hail covered Highway 70 for about two miles.

Nation to Observe Memorial Day

By the Associated Press
The nation will observe its 81st annual Memorial Day Monday with prayers for enduring peace and homage for its hero dead who fell on the field of battle.

All across the land—in hallowed Arlington cemetery, in tree-shaded country churchyards, Americans will gather to pay their solemn tribute to those who died in their country's cause.

Only through "divine guidance" can the world avert another war, President Truman said in a proclamation calling on his countrymen to observe Memorial day with a nationwide prayer for peace.

"This sacred day," Mr. Truman said, "is a fitting occasion on which the people of our nation, all of whom, directly or indirectly, have been bereft by war's terrible toll, may appeal to almighty God for help in turning the steps of the world to the paths of permanent peace."

The graves of the dead will bloom afresh in thousands of cemeteries throughout the country.

Wreaths will be placed on the tombs of the unknown soldier in Paris, London and in Arlington national cemetery. Secretary of State Tamm (D-Md.) chairman of the senate armed services committee, will deliver the Memorial address at the Arlington shrine.

Before the ceremonies at Arlington, a floral anchor will be cast into the Potomac river in tribute to the dead of the navy and marine corps. Across the nation, at San Diego, Calif., a floral cross will be dropped into the waters of the Pacific.

Ipswich in Essex county, Mass., the battle flag of the aircraft carrier Essex—extolled by its crew as the "fighting ship in the navy"—will be presented to the town of Essex, fourth fighting ship of the Essex class.

Revolutionary historical fame, served 27 continuous months of combat duty in the Pacific. Its planes were credited with destroying 1,531 enemy aircraft.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., former neighbors of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt will lay a wreath on the wartime president's grave.

At Fort Knox, Ky., a museum will be dedicated as a memorial to the late General George S. Patton, Jr. Mrs. Patton and eight army officers were scheduled to attend the ceremony with Gen. Lucius D. Clay the principal speaker.

President Truman will spend the weekend quietly, cruising on the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay with members of his staff. Mr. Truman plans to go ashore Sunday at Annapolis to attend religious services at the naval academy chapel. White House aides will represent him at the services in Washington the next day.

Dispute Drops Out Over Lumber Trucking

Little Rock, May 28 — (AP) — Are truck owners who buy lumber from sawmills and then sell it to the best bet for consumers private or public carriers?

Chairman Charles C. Wine of the Arkansas Public Service Commission says where their profit is "primarily in the haul," they are public carriers.

Involved in that difference of opinion are Arkansas and Interstate Commerce Commission laws which require public carriers to obtain permits, post rates, carry insurance and meet other standards. Private carriers are exempt from the regulations.

Cheney said he had advised sawmill operators to take the matter to court. He conceded that the question is a close one and said "if the courts say they (the truckers) are public carriers, we'll know where we stand."

The issue came to a head as result of activities of enforcement officers which the 1948 legislature authorized for the public service commission.

Cheney and a group of north Arkansas sawmill operators conferred with the Arkansas commission yesterday. The senator said he was not sure if the Arkansas Public Service Commission has jurisdiction over the matter.

Hopeful for Ford Strike Settlement

Detroit, May 28 — (AP) — Tired negotiators strove grimly for a settlement of the Ford strike today.

After a night-long tussle the conferees were still trying beyond daybreak to untangle the dispute.

On the efforts to the conferees in the strike's 23rd day hung the chance of an early return to work of 106,000 Ford employees idled in the "speedup" fight.

Chief Negotiators John S. Bugas of Ford and Walter Reuther of the union made no comment so they left the sessions for brief rests.

Both were weary. Reuther, the union president, slumped in a chair when he took one breathing spell from the protracted meeting in a midtown hotel.

It seemed evident, however, that they were determined to reach a verdict.

The night-long negotiation session was unprecedented in the strike.

At 7:30 a. m. (EST) the 25-odd company and union men had been in continuous session for 18 hours.

They had resumed conference at 8:30 o'clock last night after a previous five hours of talks earlier yesterday in two separate sessions.

Selection of the man to arbitrate the dispute was a major item on the agenda. The union demanded the reinstatement of discharged or suspended workers were reported the only unsolved matters.

Ford and the UAW already were said to have come to an understanding on the specific question to be arbitrated.

However, spokesmen for both sides disclosed, Ford wanted an industrial engineer as arbitrator and the union opposed this.

The union has insisted heretofore that the "human factor" involved in assembly line production rates could not properly be judged by a "technical" expert.

Production rates and manpower on the Ford car assembly lines have been the core of the dispute.

Ford argued at the start that arbitration should deal only with the subject of whether work rates impaired the "health or safety" of employees.

On the other hand, the union said it was a question of whether management could "require" a man to work at a rate above "100 percent of established standards."

UAW charged the company had done this in violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Roughly, the strike's cost in wage and production loss was estimated at $770,000.

The official figure was based on Ford's $1,000,000 daily cost for production workers and its $200,000 in average weekly production.

Exactly 17 working days were wiped out by the strike.

Prominent Memphis Financier Succumbs

Memphis, Tenn., May 27 — (AP) — Leslie M. Stratton, Sr., 68-year-old financier and wholesale hardware firm president, died at Methodist hospital here last night.

He had been ill for some time. Stratton, active in Methodist and civic work here for years, was president of the hospital's board of trustees. He had helped build two Methodist hospitals, one of which is now a veterans hospital.

He was president of the Stratton-Warren Hardware Co. and he was a past president of the National Wholesale Hardware Dealers' association.

Stratton helped Clarence Saunders expand the newly organized Piggly-Wiggly Grocery Stores, Inc., and became vice president of the firm in 1929. He and a partner bought 57 Piggly-Wiggly stores for $400,000, later selling them. Stratton had been in business since 1881. The financier started as a newsboy at the age of nine. At 11 he became a page boy in the United States Senate. He led several community fund campaigns and was active in the Y. M. C. A. and other phases of boys welfare work.

ISLAND OF ESCAPE

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

The Story: Bea Cosgrove, unsatisfied that the death of Lilly what do you think about Mollie and me?

Bea Cosgrove turned toward the white blur of his face, met the demands of the moment with a theatrically outburst hand. Her voice was low. You must look into your own heart for the answer.

"I understand," he said solemnly. "And thank you for putting truth above your own wishes."

Bea hurried down the steep steps of the tower. In the lower room a candle burned now and its light fell softly across the face of Mollie Stark. She opened her eyes, saw Bea Cosgrove and sneered.

Bea would have enjoyed an old-fashioned hair pull at the moment, but she went on to her own room and waved to Jim below.

Her last sight of Jim was etched on her mind. She'd been so proud. Jim would get hold of himself when she was no longer there for him to lean on. Many times in the past she leaned again on the rail of the converted liner and waved to Jim below.

She remembered Harding's tone of voice when he said, "But she forgave me."

Bea shook her head violently. There would be no forgiveness from her for Henry Harding!

DOROTHY DIX

Lie-abled Wife

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married seven years and have four children. My wife is a strong, healthy, able-bodied woman, but she is so lazy that she will not lift a hand to make us a comfortable home. The children are uncared for. They are dirty and look like little tramps with their unbrushed faces and matted hair. Our home is filthy. My wife is so untidy personally that she is repulsive. She won't do the laundry for three or four weeks at a time. We never have any food that is fit to eat. The beds are never made up until I do it.

I have to do all of the housework or it would never be done. I have told my wife that I will get a divorce and put the children in a home unless she changes her ways. I have gone through seven years of hell, and I can stand no more. What can I do?

GLENN

Answer: If anyone ever wonders what drives married men to drink and philandering, they will find the answer in this letter. It is trifling wives. And don't think that they are not common. Believe it or not, I get hundreds of letters from desperate men who work hard to support their families and provide comfortable homes for them, but who are balked by wives who are so slothful they will not even keep themselves clean, or change the babies' dummies.

It is true of course, that most women do take a pride in their home and in keeping them tidy and comfortable, and that they make every effort to give their husbands and children good food, but there are plenty of slackers left who are allergic to brooms and cook stoves and whose families never know any home that isn't an understudy for a pigsty.

Needn't Take It
All of us know husbands who have to get up and cook their own breakfasts. If they have any, and who, after a hard day's work, have to clean the house and get the dinner because their wives are too lazy and trifling to do it. And goodness only knows why they do it when there is an orphan asylum and a divorce court handy around the corner. The remedy is in their own hands.

If husbands only had the spunk to say: "If you will not work neither shall you eat," wives would get busy. For the lie-abled ladies all have good appetites.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl 15 years old and I am terribly unhappy because I am too fat. I eat too much, and I am getting fatter and fatter. Two years ago I decided I was too chubby and went on a starvation diet, but I got so hungry that I began to eat and gained all of my weight back and more. Many times I get ambitious and try to thin down, but in a week I lose all interest in my figure and begin gorging again. I have taken suggestions from everywhere about how to take off some of my fat, but all have failed. I have studied psychology and health books, even Prayer books, but nothing I try lasts more than a few days. Then I'm back again on the rails. Please tell me what to do.

MARGIE

Answer: Alas, Margie, how to get slim and still eat is one of the unsolved mysteries of life. It is something that most of us females try when we begin to get along in the forties, but few of us keep it up after our mirrors tell us that a starvation diet sets our tempers on edge and makes us look like heck.

There is, however, one ray of hope for you. Often Nature takes care of adolescent girls and shapes them down into willowy figures. But, in any case, I advise you to put yourself in the care of some good physician and let him find out if there is anything the matter with your glands.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My mother will not let me entertain any of my girl or boy friends at home. She repeatedly tells me that I can go with them on the street or to their homes, but never to bring them to mine. I should think that she would be glad for me to have my friends at our house, for then she would at least know where we were and what we were doing. Mother has even gone so far as to say that she will not heat the living room this winter so I cannot bring anyone to the house.

Do you think she is right?

Answer: Your mother is as wrong as she can possibly be in shutting the door of her home in the faces of your young friends. How does she expect to keep tabs on our comings and goings if she doesn't know your chums' by sight?

Your mother's refusal to let you have your friends at home is her selfish desire not to have her routine broken up. But many a woman pays a frightful price for this when she finds that her Sally has gotten into trouble.

Three Hope Gridmen to Attend University of Arkansas

William Buddy Sutton, Tommy Britt and James McCargo, considered the cream of last year's Bobcat grid team, will enter the University of Arkansas this fall. It was learned here today.

So the above pictured conference paid off. From left to right, Clyde Scott, University football great, Tommy Britt, Buddy Sutton, James McCargo and Coach John Barnhill. The picture was made at the annual Razorback Club meeting here last fall.

Sutton and Britt were all starters and considered the best backs in high school circles last year while McCargo was a star tackle.

Legion Downs Tomics Behind McClendon

By George Dobson

Jack McClendon was the man of the hour last night as the Hope Legion came from the role of underdogs to slay the strong Red River Tomics 5-1 to bring their won lost record to 2-2.

Threatening weather had both sides on their toes throughout the first part of the game as a heavy shower halted the game for a few minutes after the first inning, but play was resumed shortly afterward with the locals holding the four run lead the rest of the way although the game was called in the seventh inning.

Jack McClendon worked effectively in the first inning getting the Tomics' three up and three down. In the bottom of the first the locals broke loose counting four times before Parks could retire the side. Bob White struck out to lead off, Jack Bell was hit by a pitch ball, Gilson Ross got on by the error route, Jack Fountain also got on via error, Charles Townsend walked, then Bill McClendon looped a double into left field to make the fielder tried to make a shoestring catch out, with the ball getting by him accounting for two runs. Score Hope 4, Tomics' 1.

The Tomics' threatened in the second, but two strike outs stopped the onslaught. In the bottom of the third, Gilson Ross and Jack Fountain singled and Townsend walked to load the bases. Delwin Ross forced Fountain at third with Gilson Ross scoring to put Hope far enough in front that the crowd was breathing easy. Score: Hope, 5, Tomics' 1.

The locals continued to hold their visitors at bay until the top of the final frame when Musgraves walked, and Parks clouted what looked like a home run to the center field wall, but Roy Taylor running at full speed got his glove on the ball, but dropped it with Musgraves scoring.

Jack McClendon working in his first game for Hope struck out 10.
